LOCAL AGENT OF VOLUNTEER FLEET JAILED IN CIVIL ACTION

J. R. Elleder Taken On "Immediate Security" Writ

$40,000 IS ASKED

Patstone And Patstone Trying To Recover For Advances

An altogether sensational development in the litigation involving vessels of the Russian Volunteer Fleet was the arrest here late yesterday of Mr. J. R. Elleder Shanghai Agent of the Volunteer Fleet, who was held in custody at the Hongkew Police Station last night on an order issued in a civil action in the Mixed Court by Assessors Jacobs and Ivanov and Magistrate Loh.

The court order which grows out of a suit of Patstone and Patstone versus the Russian Volunteer Fleet for $40,000, was in the nature of summons for immediate security and while imprisonment particularly of foreigners, in connection with such Mixed Court orders is somewhat unusual, it is made possible by reason of phases of the Chinese law.

HISTORY OF CASE

Patstone and Patstone formerly were agents here of the Shangha Volunteer Fleet. In the action that was filed by the firm it is alleged that at the time it ceased to be agent for the fleet, in January last, the sum of $40,000 was due by reason of advances made and supplies purchased for the two vessels Erivan and Astrakhan, which have been held here for the past two years. Following the withdrawal of Patstone and Patstone Mr. Elleder was made Shanghai agent of the fleet, being fully accredited by both the Chita and Moscow governments. In this way he has become defendant in all of the actions that have been filed.

In the Patstone and Patstone suit a judgment was given in the Mixed Court some weeks ago and by the terms of this the amount of indebtedness was to be taken up and arranged with the Court Accountant of the Mixed Court. In the application for the summons that brought about Mr. Elleder's arrest it was alleged he had made no move to adjust matters in connection with this judgment.

PROTEST IS MADE

The summons was served on Mr. Elleder at his office at 16 Kiukiang Road after 5 o'clock yesterday and when he was brought into court he voiced vigorous protest, asserting it was an imposition to be called upon without notice and at that hour of the day immediately to post security in the sum of $20,000. When he was unable to provide this security, however, he was taken into custody and, as places of detention provided by the Chinese under their law in cases of the sort are lacking here, he was transferred to Hongkew police station where necessarily he was subjected to ordinary procedure followed in dealing with criminal cases, ordinarily the only sort of cases in which imprisonment is a factor. He was searched and then locked in a cell.

The protest that Mr. Elleder made is being vigorously emphasized by his attorney Doctor Fischer who yesterday forwarded the protest against imprisonment of Mr. Elleder in telegrams addressed to the Moscow Government and to the Commission from Moscow to Peking headed by M. Joffe. The matter also is being taken up by Doctor Fischer with the Consular Body here and with the Chinese Commissioner of Foreign Affairs.

Hitch In Plans For Peking Loan

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Sept. 15.—A hitch has occurred in the arrangements for the issue of the $10,000,000 short term loan. It appears that the Chinese bankers, while approving the terms of the issue, wanted to stipulate that the proceeds should be used primarily for the repayment of the obligations falling due to them. As this would have defeated the Government's purpose of providing funds to meet early administrative expenditure the Government approached the foreign banks, which replied with a query as to whether China was entitled to pledge even the unencumbered portion of the Russian Boxer indemnity. Up to the present the Government has not replied and the proposed loan has reached a deadlock.

ROTARIANS SEE FIRE FIGHTERS IN MANY STUNTS

Men Show Great Skill And Speed In Laying Lines

Members of the Shanghai Rotary Club were given an opportunity to inspect the local Fire Brigade at work as guests of the officers of the department yesterday.

At 5:45, Captain Dyson, Acting Chief of the Fire Brigade, turned out the Central Station. The first bit of gear was out in eight seconds and under a minute all the engines in the station were going round the block via Honan, Foochow, Kiangse and Hankow Roads. On Hankow Road, the first motor laid out a single stream with breaching block and one 2½ inch stream and two 1½ inch streams.

Meanwhile the motor jump had caught up the connection at the Hankow Road hydrant with a feeder from around the corner in the Kiangse Road. The large turn table fire escape was then elevated by compressed air to a height of over 80 feet and from the elevated position, a powerful stream was played. In a few minutes after the whistle to "turn off," all the hose was rolled up and the company returned to the station.

At the station, an exhibition of cutting a steel bar by oxyacetylene flame was given as well as demonstrations of the utility of the smoke helmet and other up-to-date apparatus.

Then the first crew scaled the building with Pompier ladders and demonstrated the efficiency of that section of the brigade.

Leaving Central Fire Station, the Rotarians were conducted to Hongkew Station, also equipped with the most up-to-date engines. Here again the company was turned out and a very excellent drill was performed.

Firemen jumped into a sheet from the second story and a stream was played from the very top of the Hongkew Tower. After visiting the work shops where much of the equipment is manufactured, the guests were entertained in the Recreation Room where Mr. Holgate thanked Captain Dyson, Mr. Upton and the other officers for the splendid demonstrations given by the department.

During the demonstration of the smoke helmet, some of the Rotarians were given an opportunity to realise the effect of smoke with the aid of a helmet, which caused considerable amusement among those who did not go into smoke chamber.

CHINA TRADE ACT O.K'D BY SENATE, SOON TO BE SIGNED

Five Year Campaign Reaches Successful Conclusion

BIG HELP HERE

Measure Will Put U. S. Firms On Footing With Others

Cabled advices and news reports received here yesterday from Washington, D. C. tell that the China Trade Act which provides for federal incorporation of American firms in China and puts these firms on an equality with other foreign business interests by exempting them from payment of income tax, passed the Senate and now only awaits President Harding's signature before it becomes law.

This is the federal incorporation measure which American commercial interests in China generally and the American Chamber of Commerce were in particular have been working for through the past five years. Representative I. C. Dyer, who introduced the bill in the house has been the active sponsor for it and one of the messages received here yesterday telling that it had passed the senate came from him. The act has received the unofficial enforcement of President Harding and it is believed that he will sign the act without delay.

WHAT ACT PROVIDES

1.—Federal incorporation under a single set of known regulations. This will eliminate the confusion resulting from the attempt to apply in China under extraterritorial jurisdiction the conflicting corporate regulations of the forty-eight different states, territories and dependencies, none of which were ever intended for foreign trade purposes.

2.—It provides the machinery for co-operation of Chinese and American capital in business and development enterprises with the best possible protection for the interests of both parties that it is possible to obtain under the American form of government.

3.—It attempts to provide equality of taxation for the American firm in China in its competition with firms of other nationality which have been granted similar exemptions by their home governments. The taxation exemption is for companies only upon that part of their business conducted in China including Manchuria, Thibet, Mongolia, the Crown Colony of Hongkong and the province of Macao. The exemptions apply to American and Chinese stockholders resident in China.

4.—The head office of a China Trade Act corporation must be nominally in the District of Columbia but branch offices may be established at such places as is deemed advisable. Corporations formed under this act must carry the phrase, "Fed. Inc. U. S. A." after their title.

5.—The Act carries strict provisions covering the issuance of stock and the actual money or equivalent represented. Penalties are provided for violations.

6.—The administration of the Act will be under the Department of Commerce through an officer known as China Trade Act Registrar, the residence of whom will be in China. Appeal from the decisions of the Registrar must be to the Secretary of Commerce in Washington who may affirm, modify or set aside.

7.—Legal actions arising under this Act may be heard in the U. S. Court for China, the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia or any federal district court of the United States.

8.—China Trade Act corporations may be formed by five or more individuals, a majority of whom are American citizens. The president, treasurer or secretary or corresponding officers must also be American citizens.

9.—Tentative Regulations for putting the China Trade Act into effect have already been drafted so there should be no untoward delay after the Act has received the President's signature.

10.—One of the chief benefits to be derived from the Act is that it provides for local control of

Regard Author As Discourteous Because Of His Position

(Eastern News Agency)

Tokio, Sept. 15.—A novel with a title of "Kimono," written by a certain British official who was formerly attached to the British Embassy at Tokio, and which is now very popular in Great Britain and America, is intended to show the world only the dark side of Japan in a very exaggerated style, heaping abuse to the extreme on Japan. There are not a few foreigners resident in Japan who are treating the novel with scorn, and all intelligent persons are of course considering it beneath criticism.

But taking into consideration the fact that the author is one of officials of the British Foreign Office and moreover one of the British reception committees on the occasion of the visit to England last year of the Prince Regent of Japan, severe criticism is being directed against him on the ground that he has committed international discourtesy. Though the publishers are giving out that the sale of the novel has been prohibited in Japan, the fact is the novel has never been suppressed in this country.

At the same time Mr. Ziar intimated that libel proceedings would be brought against the two men responsible for the publication of the letter as a notice in the newspapers, one of them a Chinese lawyer.

RIVAL GENERALS SEEK CONTROL OF KIANGSI CAPITAL

Tsai Chen-hsun Holding On But Tenure Is Short, Belief

(China Press Correspondence)

Nanchang, Sept. 10.—Button, button, who's got the button? Rather, who's going to get it? There is a race on for Kiangsi's capital and uneasy rests the head of Tsai Chen-hsun who has managed to retain his position longer than any thought he would.

On petition of Kiangsi people a telegram is said to have been sent by Wu Pei-fu to Chang Teh-shen, Honan Bandit who was sent down here when Tujen Chen departed more to ease the Honan situation than to help out the war on the South here that he should return at once to the north. The order went to Chang through Tsai and its recipient was not at all pleased at the idea of leaving fields so fat and fair just as the harvest was coming on. Instead of leaving he is reported to have declared his independence of Tsai and setting up an independent government in the southeast, with headquarters at Fuchow.

Shen Hung-yin, Kwangsi General driven from there into Hunan and from Hunan into Kiangsi is said to be co-operating with Chang from Kanchow as a base from whence he has driven former Tuchon Chen's Twelfth Division to Wananhsien. Semi-reliable reports state that Changshu, not far from the capital has received large numbers of wounded from this conflict. Shen claims to be a Kiangsi man and says that most of his officers are Kiangsi men and feels that he is the logical man to drive the hated Tsai from the province. He ought to be able to get to Nanchang in a fairly reasonable time if the Northern resistance is not decidedly strengthened.

But Shen is not the only man with eyes upon the capital. Sun Yat-sen's General Hsu Shen-chih, colleague of Li Lieh-chun, now in Shanghai on sick leave, is reported to have crossed the border of Fukien in his flight from Canton and entered Kiangsi at Hui-shang. He is following down the Fu River and is said to have had effective engagements already with the troops of Chang Teh-shen who now holds the Fuchow Sector. Hsu is a Fukien man, and for that reason the natives seem to favor Shen Hung-yin, but it is quite clear that the first man to win the race is the man who will for a spell at least hold the keys to Nanchang and the bulk of the revenues.

Whether or not Tsai staged the looting that took place on Sept. 5, in order to pry coin from the hard hearted people of the city, is hinted at but not proved, but at any rate it had that effect and he has received $150,000 from the Bank of China, $100,000 from the Bank of Kiangsi and $50,000 from local merchants, $300,000 in all, and a sum $200,000 short of his $500,000 demand. In spite of the large sum that has been paid over there is great apprehension upon the part of the people.

General Tsai has paid over to the owners of looted shops four or five thousand dollars as damages and personally apologised for the outbreak. Two soldiers were killed within a few feet of the Y. M. C. A. residence wall near the south gate where most of the looting and shooting occurred, and a number of people were wounded but in view of the large amount of shooting which took place casualties and damage were very slight. No fires were started. The Police under Commissioner Yen rendered good and efficient service.

Trial Of Insurance Suit For Yen 15,000 Is Ended

Trial of a suit against The Hartford Fire Insurance Company and The American Foreign Insurance Association in which Mr. E. Y. Kamorovsky is seeking to recover Yen 15,000 was brought to a conclusion yesterday afternoon in the United States Court for China before Judge C. S. Lobingier save for the testimony of a single witness, Mr. E. O. Golempoiski, who now is in Harbin and whose testimony may be submitted by deposition.

Mr. Kamorovsky brought suit against the two insurance concerns, claiming that he had insured certain typhographical machinery in Harbin in the Hartford Fire Insurance Company for Yen 15,000, that the machinery had since been lost through fire in the godowns in which it was stored, and that he had not recovered on his loss. Mr. Kamorovsky was represented by Mr. P. F. Faison of Williams, Franklin & Faison.

The Hartford Insurance Company, represented by Mr. James B. Davies and Davies & Bryan, contend that Mr. Kamorovsky was insured in the Russian Lloyd Steamship and Transport Company of Harbin, who in turn insured in the Hartford company. They admit the insurance, but are fighting the case to protect themselves from possible suit by the Russian-Lloyd Line as they assert the policy is in the name of the Russian Lloyd Line and they, therefore, are the only ones to whom they could pay the policy.

BASIS OF CASE

Mr. Kamorovsky testified that he had insured the machinery in the Hartford company through the Russian Lloyd Line. The machinery was at first insured for 300,000 roubles, he said, but because of the depreciation of Russian currency he had requested that it be changed to Yen 15,000. He did not specify the Hartford company, he said, but was told that the insurance was in that company and had been shown a Hartford policy.

At the same time, he said, he had taken out Y50,000 with the Yangtsze Insurance Company because they had given him a cheaper rate of $1 per $1,000 per month. He had taken the insurance through the Russian Lloyd, he said, because they required all goods stored in their godowns to be insured through them. He also had a receipt from the concern showing the insurance had been paid but the receipt was now in Vladivostok, he said.

After the fire in January, 1921, he came to Shanghai he said, and took up the insurance payment with both companies. The Yangtsze policy, which was in his name, amounting to Yen 16,000 for the damage, was paid after arbitration, and the Hartford people told him they would pay after the arbitration question had been settled, he said. Before he could be paid an injunction was issued and he was never paid.

Under cross-examination by Mr. Davies, Mr. Kamorovsky admitted the the Yangtsze policy was in his name while the Hartford policy was in the name of the Russian Lloyd, who had taken the policy out for him. He would not admit that he knew the Russian Lloyd issued insurance policies of their own, but admitted he had never paid the premiums direct to the Hartford company.

"You say you paid $2 per $1,000 for fire insurance with the Hartford company alone, "Mr. Davies said," and yet the Hartford company's rate for fire insurance is 85 cents per $1,000 and they handle nothing but fire insurance in China."

Mr. Davis then pointed out that while Mr. Kamorovsky had testified he had seen the Hartford policy at the time he received his receipt the receipt was dated December 21 and the policy was noted issued until two days later. Mr. Kamorovsky said it was about that time, not absolutely December 21.

TELLS OF POLICY

Mr. George A. Moszkovski, assistant general manager of the American Asiatic Underwriters who at the time the policy was issued was in charge of the Hartford business in Manchuria, explained how the policy was written and the Hartford's understanding of it.

Mr. Moszkovski said the Russian Lloyd Line was a Russian concern with head offices in either Moscow or Petrograd. The policy was issued through their Harbin office he said, and was written by Mr. E. O. Golempolski, the Hartford's Harbin manager.

Mr. Moszkovski testified that the Hartford did not recognise any claim by Kamorovsky because the policy was made out to the Russian Lloyd Line and therefore could be paid only to them. The Russian Lloyd Line was now out of business in Harbin, but no demand had been made on the Hartford by either Kamorovsky or the Russian Lloyd. As a matter of fact, Mr. Moszkovski said, their was a mass of correspondence in the files of the company that would show that the Russian Lloyd Line had denied that Kamorovski had any claim on the money.

LAWYERS TESTIFY

Two Russian lawyers were called during the session by Mr. Faison, counsel for the defense. Mr. Nicholas Dukelsky was called as an authority on Russian law and testified that under the Russian law if any concern wrote insurance they must have such words in their firm name as would designate their business, unless special provision had been made in the company's bye-laws and approved by the Russsian government. He did not know whether the Russian Lloyd Line had such permission or not, he said in reply to questions by Mr Davies.

Mr. A. A. Roushkovsky was called to produce the receipt for the insurance Mr. Kamorovsky had claimed to have received, but said he was unable to produce it as he had sent it back to a client in Vladivostok last Tuesday. Mr. Faison insinuated that the Russian lawyer had sent the receipt back when he learned of the suit in order to circumvent the course of law.

Mr. H. A. Wiley, manager for China of the American Foreign Insurance Association, was called for technical insurance information and questions concerning the Hartford company. Afterr explaining technical terms Mr. Wiley said he wished to make it clear that the Hartford was not objecting to paying the insurance claim, but merely wanted the Court to decide whether it should be paid to Kamorovsky or the Russian Lloyd Line so as to protect the company from further liability.

Tokio, Sept. 8.—Interviewed by press representatives, Baron Ijuin, the new Governor-General of Kwantung, said that nothing was more regrettable than the estrangement between Japan and China. "The two Powers," he went on, "meet in a most convenient position in Manchuria for the promotion of the mutual understanding which is essential to the maintenance of lasting peace in the Oriental world. As head of the Kwantung Administration, therefore, it is my most sincere determination to devote myself to the establishment of better relations between the Chinese and the Japanese in Manchuria in the hope of paving the way for a real Sino-Japanese understanding."

Japan To Protect Nationals In Siberia

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, Sept. 8.—After repeated conferences the Government authorities have come to an agreement regarding their policy of rescuing the Japanese residents in Siberia who are to withdraw from the Province in consequence of the military evacuation.

According to Mr. Hanihara, Vice-Minister for Foreign Affairs, the Government has decided to ensure the protection of the Japanese residents after the military withdrawal by means of warships. The names of the vessels will be published shortly.

Besides an allowance for each Japanese, withdrawing from Siberia, to cover his travelling expenses, the Government will compensate the residents of long standing for the losses sustained by the sudden military withdrawal. The residents have applied for a grant of five million yen, but the amount will have to be considerably decreased in view of the existing financial condition.

FOR REMOVING SUPERFLUOUS HAIR.

No woman who has any sense of beauty will deny that superfluous hair is one of the greatest drawbacks to good looks.

Realising this, women of all times have put themselves to any expense, and have endured considerable pain and discomfort in order to rid themselves of this great disfigurement.

Nowadays electrolysis is a prevalent "cure" for this evil, but in reality this process involves a great deal of unnecessary expense, waste of time and pain.

The simplest quickest, and most effective treatment can easily be carried out by any sufferer, in the privacy of her home. This is the recipe:

Procure about 1 oz. powdered pheminol from your chemist; mix a sufficient quantity with a few drops of water into a stiff paste. Apply this carefuly and thoroughly to the hair you wish to remove, and allow the paste to dry. In a few minutes it can be gently scraped away. The skin is left absolutely free from hair, and should then be carefully washed in warm water, and if desired, lightly dusted with a little talcum powder. (Advt.)

Piece Goods Situation Here Called "Hopeful"

There seems reason for taking a hopeful view of the piece-goods situation. Clearances continue to improve, and there is perceptible a small inquiry. It is complained that offers are low, but that is better than being without offers. A buyer who starts by bidding too much would scarcely be regarded as normal. The big Shanghai piecegoods houses still continue to act with caution. Although inquiries have increased somewhat sales are comparitively rare. There are still some who believe that China will be on the Manchester market, in accordance with tradition, sooner than India, and help herself pretty liberally at what Manchester shippers will hope will be the bottom of the market.

It must be admitted that there is nothing pointing in that direction at the moment. Only a scrappy business is provided, and the consuming markets in the interior of China are not making substantial progress. Apparently, the buying will be conspicuous when the cotton crop is marketed. In that case, there seems a fair chance of an early revival of business in the local piecegoods trade within another month. On the other hand, it is understood that there are some moderate lines waiting to be placed as soon as it is felt that values have grounded the Chinese buyer is still obsessed with the view that Manchester prices for certain lines have not touched bottom. It is scarcely surprising that the Chinese dealer, having already witnessed that prices not long ago had been moving steadily downward, have chosen to look on. Obviously any other policy would be mistaken. To a certain extent the declines that had taken place in Manchester goods had helped to keep the Chinese dealers from operating freely.

BIG SPINDLE ORDER

Platt Brothers of Oldham are stated to have received orders for more than a million spindles from China and Japan, and it is not unlikely that some other English and American machinists have received substantial orders. The cotton mills in Shanghai have recently embarked on extensive extensions, and firms specialising in textile machinery have reaped a good trade, and are likely to reap a further good business in the near future. Platts have orders from Shanghai that will keep them busy for another two years.

After confessing that the Chinese cotton manufacturing industry is going ahead at a great rate and likely to continue doing so for a time, and that "the existing mills have been much better employed than those in Lancashire," the "Manchester Guardian" makes the following assertion with special reference to the large orders that have been going from China to England and America for spindles: "The news looks rather ominous for the Lancashire manufacturing trade, but happily it is not really alarming. The Chinese mills use very little cotton besides the inferior stuff which is grown in the country, and it is impossible for them to produce goods of the quality that Lancashire turns out." The journal goes on: "Those which are only averting the prospective decline in Japan of which we have spoken can, of course, be treated as of no account from the Lancashire point of view, and the other will start with the double disadvantage of having to buy machinery at a great cost, compared with that in use here, and employing operatives who are absolutely without training. Lancashire manufacturers cannot live under such handicaps, and we do not expect that the new competition in China will disturb them much."

CAUSE FOR WORRY

Certainly, at present the mills in Lancashire need not feel perturbed at the strides that the Chinese cotton spinning and weaving industry is making, but any one who has studied how the infant industry has grown in vigor and importance will be inclined to feel that in the course of say, the next five years, it will give Lancashire abundant cause to sit up and take notice. The remarks of the "Manchester Guardian," that the Chinese mills use very little cotton outside of what is grown in China which it describes as "inferior stuff," is so palpably incorrect. One has only to turn to the statistics of the trade of China for last year, when 516,678 piculs of American cotton were imported compared with 34,049 piculs in 1920. The importations from India last year amounted to 981,136 piculs as against 413,964 piculs in 1920.

It is true that compared with the Lancashire grade Chinese cotton is much inferior, but that does not necessarily follow that Chinese cotton cannot be improved. In fact, it must be mentioned valuable cotton improvement work is already being carried out by the Nanking Agricultural University, which aims at promoting the growing of cotton according to modern methods from specially selected and acclimatised seeds. Although the scheme is still in its initial stages good progress is being made. There is every hope that Chinese cotton will be improved and be able to compete with Lancashire cotton in time. Surely, the "Manchester Guardian" could not have had the statistics of the trade in piece goods in China when it made the remark.

FIGURES FOR IMPORTS

It is not likely that the "Manchester Guardian" is speaking with any degree of accuracy when it says that mills in Lancashire should not have any qualms at the development of the cotton industry in Shanghai and China. We should think that they have good cause to begin worrying. Let us examine the figures of importations of piece goods, and compare those of last year with the pre-war period of 1913. Prices are useless in these times for purposes of comparison by reason of the fact that exchange during the period had fluctuated considerably. It is more accurate to turn to actual number of pieces. It would be more instructive if the importations of piece goods from other countries during the period were also shown thus adding point to what is desired to be conveyed in this article. Here are the tabulated figures.

	1913 Pieces
British	11,705,426
American	2,281,124
Japanese	5,716,594
Other Kinds	97,714
Total	19,600,858

	1920 Pieces
British	5,784,026
American	563,583
Japanese	7,035,458
Other Kinds	54,567
Total	13,437,634

	1921 Pieces
British	3,489,093
American	626,233
Japanese	5,815,665
Other Kinds	448,530
Total	10,379,521

Surely, the Manchester and other English merchants have grave cause to worry over the way they are losing trade. It may contended that at the opening of last year, in common with most lines of imported goods stocks on hand in Shanghai and other important centers of China were exceptionally heavy, with demand practically non-existent and the trade in a bad way. But the fact remains that the importations of piece-goods from Great Britain in 1920 showed a tremendous falling-off in volume. Instead of the piece goods manufacturers in England not worrying about developments in China it would seem there is ample necessity of doing so immediately. Manchester is slowly losing its hold on the Chinese market. it may be that a set of exceptional circumstances has combined to help do this, but there is no reason why piece goods merchants should not be made to realise the gravity of the whole situation, from their side.

MAKING VAST STRIDES

We would all like to see China progress industrially and manufacture the goods that she is at present importing and thereby give employment to her millions. We see feverish signs of this industrialisation on all sides, and keen observers forecast that in the course of the next few years China shall have made such vast strides in manufacturing as to surprise everybody. Mills and factories of all kinds are springing up throughout the country, and the progress of this movement would have been more rapid had the political conditions been not constantly disturbing.

The amount of cotton, other than Chinese cotton, consumed by the Shanghai mills is large. During the six months ending July 21 last, the mills consumed 394,689 bales of Chinese cotton and 272,169 bales of other cotton, while the stocks at the mills on July 31 last was 131,068 bales of Chinese cotton and 146,506 bales of other cotton.

Great interest is still being paid before the crop eventually comes on the market, to the progress of typhoons. Professional speculators have been exaggerating the damage done by the typhoon that passed over Shanghai a couple of weeks. The exact damage is not known, but however severe it may have been it could not have executed much havoc. It must be remembered that before the typhoon swept the cotton-growing regions the Chinese farmers had collected a great portion of the crop. In some parts of the cotton belt the farmers had already picked half the cotton crop, while in others they had picked 30 percent of the earlier crop. A conservative estimate would place the picking from 25 to 50 percent in the cotton belt. It, therefore, follows that whatever the damage only a percentage of the crop that had not been picked had suffered. The damage suffered, therefore, could not have been so serious as to alter very materially the yield that had been anticipated.

It will be of interest to local cotton merchants to learn that the Japan Raw Cotton Association has proposed to the Nippon Yusen Kaisha, the Osaka Shoshen Kaisha and the Toyo Kisen Kaisha, which are engaged in the transportation of American raw cotton to the East, the revision of cotton freights, including the landing charges in Japanese ports.

The first silk exposition ever held in Shanghai is to take place this month under the auspices of the Chinese Chamber of Commerce. The exhibition is principally being held to enable a large number of exhibits being selected for the Second International Silk Exposition, which will be opened in New York on February 5 and close on February 15 next. This will be the first time that a preliminary showing before Chinese eyes has ever been held in Shanghai, and it will therefore be interesting in its historical aspects for it will show the Chinese arts of weaving, dying and embroidering in highest perfection, and will include some of the oldest and most beautiful silk fabrics in existence.

Views were also exchanged on the arrangements consequent on the withdrawal of the Japanese troops.

It is understood that as soon as the above agreement is effected another trade agreement between Japan and Soviet Russia will be discussed.

In order to rescue the Far East from falling into disorder and confusion, the telegram adds, the Russian delegates changed their attitude and appreciated Japan's sincerity with the result that the threatening atmosphere, which has from the beginning surrounded the conference, has been completely cleared away and that the conference has thus come to deliberate upon the agenda in earnest. The conference is to be held on one morning of the 15th instant.

REID'S, LIMITED, FOUND BANKRUPT IN COURT RULING

Decision Given On Petition Filed By R. P. Bryan For Creditor Concern

Reid's Limited is declared to be bankrupt in a ruling handed down yesterday in the United States Court for China by Judge C. S. Lobingier, following hearing of a petition that was filed on behalf of Giesel and Company, a creditor, by Mr. Robert T. Bryan of Davies and Bryan. A meeting of the creditors of Reid's Limited is to be held on Monday.

Judge Lobingier's order on the question is as follows:

This cause comes on for hearing upon the pleadings and the evidence;

Upon consideration whereof the Court finds that Reid's Ltd. has committed one or more acts of bankruptcy within the meaning and intent of the Acts of Congress relating thereto; The said Reid's Ltd. is accordingly declared and adjudged a bankrupt.

It is further ordered that this cause be referred to Nelson E. Lurton, Esq. as referee in bankruptcy, to conduct such further proceedings herein as are required by said Acts and that the petitioner and others interested shall attend before said referee on the 18th day of September, at 9:30 a.m. in the United States Court room and thenceforth shall submit such orders as shall be made by said referee and by this Court relating to this cause.

Mr. Bryan in his application represented Giesel and Company, to whom Reid's were indebted for Tls. 180,332.40, the Oriental Press, for $3,657.31, and Little Brothers for Tls. 7,868.70. The application was supported by Mr. P. F. Falson of Williams, Franklin and Falson in behalf of Mr. Li Hing of Hongkong, another creditor.

The petition was argued before Judge Lobingier on August 25 when Mr. Bryan asserted that bankruptcy was asked because the creditors he represented were not satisfied with the way in which the official receiver, Mr. W. P. Strickland, had conducted business. Mr. Bryan asserted also that the firm had committed two acts of bankruptcy through Mr. Strickland's transferring part of the firm's assets to the Chinese-American Commercial Bank, and a large part of the firm's property to one of the creditors, the Mercantile Bank of India.

Mr. R. S. Haskell appeared on behalf of the receiver and denied that any acts of bankruptcy had been committed or that the receiver had done any acts that were prejudicial to the creditors interests.

Dye Embargo May Halt Tariff Bill

(China Press Service)

Washington, Sept. 14.—The action of the joint committee of the Senate and House in writing the dye embargo in the Tariff bill after both the Senate and House had rejected the embargo's inclusion in the original bill will bring on a fight in Congress that may delay its final passage considerably.

Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire has already declared war on the provision and Representatives Hamilton Fish, jr., of New York, and Roy O. Woodruff of Michigan will fight it in the House.

The Senate is also expected to debate on levying 1½ cents a pound on potash as agreed by the joint committee after the Senate had placed in on the free list.

The Chihli troops, who have been despatched to this region have more than once encountered the bandits, inflicting a large number of casualties on them. The outlaws, however, are still increasing in strength.

In consequence, over 500 leading residents in the looted district have addressed a telegraphic petition to the Civil Governor of Chihli, requesting him to despatch more troops both to put down bandits and to control the soldiers of the 26th Division who are helping the bandits to loot the district.

Accordingly, Mr. Wang Chengming, Civil Governor of Chihli, yesterday despatched upward of 20 detectives to investigate the actual state of affairs in the region.

Rail Strikers Fail On Seniority Stand

(Reuter's Service)

Chicago, Sept. 14.—The railway strike settlement provides that the men shall return to work at the same wages and in the same positions as they held when they ceased work. The question of the relative standing of old and new men will be referred to a Board comprised of equal numbers of railway officials and members of the Union.

The agreement provides that the railroads shall within a month find positions for the strikers who have not committed acts of violence. The list of railroads actually involved has not been published and it is believed that none has yet signed the pact.

It is stated that the strike will be continued on those railroads not signing though it is hoped that all the companies will eventually come to an agreement.

The men stand to lose approximately $50,000,000 yearly through the cut which became effective on the day of the strike and which was advanced as one of the reasons for striking.

Preparations for ordering the men to return to work have begun. It is stated that upwards of 50 railroads are accepting the agreement while others may adhere to it if they desire.

Here Are True Versions Of Harry Kingman's Two Famous Baseball Yarns

By Westa

Owing partly to pressure of space in yesterday's issue, and partly to the pressure of a flock of trip hammers against the throbbing temples of a certain reporter after his return from the baseball dinner Thursday night, the story of how Fritz Meusel once took pity on Umpire Bill Dineen, and another story of how Donie Bush worked a Yankee pitcher, Cy Pie by name, for a base on balls, as delightfully told at the dinner by Harry Kingman, were somewhat delcted and balled up in these columns yesterday morning.

Owing to these unfortunate and deeply regretted circumstances a fine little baseball poem that was read at the dinner by Walter Holliday failed of publication due to the fact that the manuscript, which had been entrusted to the same reporter, was mysteriously lost, to reappear after the paper had gone to press in the outside pocket of the reporter's coat, where some miscreant who doubtless was inspired by jealousy of Walter's poetical genius, had feloniously hidden it. It will appear in the pink sheet tomorrow.

Harry's first story—the one about Fritz Meusel and Umpire Bill Dineen—concerned a game in New York in which Fritz was called out on a third strike that didn't look any more like a strike to Fritz than Jimmy Logan looks like a movie hero, and he was pretty sore about it. So sore, in fact, that he began yawping at Dineen. Bill listened patiently, being in a pleasant mood that day, according to Harry; but presently he sought to end the conversation by resorting to a favorite little trick of umpires on such occasions, to wit, picking up the whisk broom and brushing off the plate.

FRITZ AND BILL

So he started toward the whisk broom and was just about to pick it up when Fritz, who had turned and walked with him toward the broom, still squawking, gave it a little kick. But Bill was in good humor that day, Harry said, so he paid no attention to that little discourtesy on Fritz's part, and started toward the broom again. Again Fritz kicked it just as Bill was stooping to pick it up, sending it another ten feet down the first base line. Even that failed to make Bill mad, as he was feeling extra well that day, according to Harry, so he started after the broom again. Fritz tagged along, and just as the ump was stooping for the third time to pick up the broom he kicked it away once more.

"Well," said Harry, between the gales of mirth that swept over his audience every time Fritz kicked the broom out of Bill's reach, "umpires, like worms, sometimes turn, and Bill turned. You know he is a big, red faced, broad shouldered, thick necked bird who used to be a pitcher before he turned to umpiring, and when he turned on little Fritz, with fire in his eyes and the cords of his neck sticking out Fritz thought he was going to be swallowed whole in one bite, and so, retreating a step or two he gulped, quickly:

"'It's all right Bill! I forgive you.'"

* * *

Harry's other story concerned a game between The Detroit Tigers and the New York Yankees, at New York, back in the days when Frank Chance was manager of the Yanks. The New York pitcher that day was Cy Pie, whom Harry described as having a snarling disposition and the biggest nose in the major leagues. From what Harry said it must of been a nose something like the one possessed by the hero of one of Dick Connell's stories in a recent magazine, the bridge of which was described by Dick as "a stupendous feat of nasal engineering."

Well, along in the early part of this game, Harry said, there were two down and two on when old Sam Crawford came to bat with a chance to put the game on ice for the Bengals. He failed, however, as the best he could do was a pop up to the shortstop. Sam felt pretty sore about this, and it didn't help his state of mind any when the pitcher asked him, as he was walking out toward his station in right field, "what his grandchildren in the stands thought of his marvelous pop up."

Well, Harry said, the game went along until the thirteenth inning, which opened with the score tied two all. It was getting late by that time, and when Donie Bush, the Tiger shortstop, went to bat he was determined to get on if he could. Cy was nobody's pie but his own that day, however, and the first thing Donie knew the count was two and two. It was then that he started out to get Cy's goat.

"Say, Cy," he said to the pitcher, "do you know what Nick Altrock said about you yesterday?"

"Naw," snarled Cy, "what did the big bum say?"

"He said you ought to be barred out of the league because it is impossible for a batter to hit a ball past your nose when you are standing sideways."

THE OLD BEAN BALL

That made Cy so mad that he heaved one at Donie's head, which the shortstopper dodged. That made the count three and two. So Donie renewed his verbal assault on the pitcher.

"But that wasn't all he said," he taunted.

Cy paid no attention that time, but Donie saw he was mad clear through, so just as he was taking his wind-up he chirped:

"Nick said that if he had your nose full of nickels he would never work another day in his life."

That made Cy so mad that he threw the ball at Donie's head again, but as that was what Bush was looking for he dodged it easily and walked to first. Then came Oscar Vitt, who sacrificed him to second, and that brought Cobb up. By this time the pitcher was getting worried, particularly as Chance was beginning to yelp at him from the dugout and so, remembering Crawford's earlier failure he decided to walk Cobb and take a chance with Sam.

"Well," Harry said, "anybody who knew Sam Crawford in those days will tell you that one pop-up a season was about the extent of his indulgence in that variety of hitting. They will also tell you that passing another batter to bring Sam up was about as safe as trying to stick a finger down a rattlesnake's throat. Anyway that's what this pitcher would have told you if you had asked him about it afterwards, for Sam promptly drove one over the right field fence.

"But that wasn't all. You see this pitcher had been kidding the Tigers all through the game, particularly Sam, by asking him about his grandchildren and the like, so here was a chance to get even. So Donie, who was on second, ran down to third and stopped until Ty caught up with him, and the both of them waited until Sam came along, after which they put their hands on each other's shoulders, lockstep fashion, and marched slowly home, each with his thumb to his nose, giving Cy the well known thumbed nose salute."

Thus it will be seen that Harry was what you might call the life of the party.

From Wet Goods To Dry Goods

THURMAN B. HYDE

Mr. Hyde, whose pleasing personality has made him popular at the Del Monte where he has been manager for the last two years, made his farewell appearance last night. He is leaving today for a short trip to Peking and other points in China and will return early in October to catch a boat for San Francisco where he plans to engage in business. Before coming to Shanghai Mr. Hyde was well known up and down the Pacific Coast, as an athlete—ball player, boxer and automobile racer: also as an automobile salesman. When we asked him what business he was going into at home he scratched his head in a puzzled way and then said: "Well, all I can say is, I'm getting out of wet goods into dry goods."

No Ruling As Yet On Amateur Status Of British Golfer

(China Press Service)

New York, Sept. 12.—Officials of the United States Golf Association are waiting for W. I. Hunter, former British amateur golf champion, to enter the forthcoming United States national amateur tournament before ruling on his status as an amateur.

He has not yet been declared ineligible, it is stated, but officials of the association confirm reports that the entry of George Von Elm, of Salt Lake City, in the national amateur tournament has been rejected.

Officials said that no formal statement of the reason for the action in Von Elm's case would be issued. Nor would they indicate what action would be taken in case Hunter should enter.

Reports published recently said that both Hunter and Von Elm had been declared professionals by the association. These reports were circulated shortly after the entry of one Willie Hunter in the national professional tournament at Oakmont was revealed. Similarity in names led to confusion. The Hunter playing in the professional tournament was not the former British amateur champion, but his cousin, who is professional at the Onwentsia Club, Chicago.

BANDIT CHIEFS OFF TO SHANGHAI TO SPEND WINTER

They Enjoy The Climate Of Foreign Concessions In This City

(China Press Correspondence)

Suchien, Kiangsu, September 10.—A few weeks ago a defence commissioner for Hsuchoufu visited this place, and the magistrate celebrated the occasion by shooting an odd lot of prisoners which he happened to have on hand, 32 at one time, 53 in all. So far as we can ascertain, many of these men were in prison awaiting trial, and had never been sentenced to death. However, as trial always means torture, and as the result is usually a foregone conclusion, perhaps most prisoners accused of robbery would be willing to omit the formality of a trial. Such is the wonderful judicial system of China, and yet some of our friends are talking of withdrawing extra-territorial privileges!

The eastern section of the Lung-Hai Railway has been built as far as the Grand Canal, and work trains now carry passengers from Hsuchoufu to the canal. This route is becoming very popular with the people of this part of the country, and it is to be hoped that the construction will soon be pushed on to Haichow. We are very glad to report this section of country in much better condition at the present time than it was a year ago. This summer has been an unusually dry one, so much so that some of the crops suffered a little from drought. Despite this fact, considering the season as a whole the crops are very good, much above the average for this country.

While the crops are good, it is rather disappointing to find the price of food still very high. flour is 100 cash per catty now, as compared with 80 cash on year ago during the great floods The highest point reached last spring was 132 cash. Grain is being shipped out of this section of country in large quantities which means trouble later.

Bandits are less numerous and less active than at any time in many months. Some may suppose that this improvement is partly due to the increased supply of food in the country, but we believe it is mostly due to the better work by the troops, both regulars and militia. The regular troops were changed some months ago, and it is said that the new comers do not sell ammunition to the robbers. On the other hand, they have rounded up and killed many of the robbers, so that the latter are not very aggressive now. The big bands have scattered out, and many of the leaders have already gone south for the winter. Most of the big chiefs, who have plenty of money, have their winter quarters in Shanghai, in the foreign concessions. They seem to find the climate there more salubrious and have better facilities for enjoying their ill-gotten wealth.

Many men in this district, including some of the militia, are now learning a form of sorcery which renders them invulnerable to all kinds of weapons, but the charm does not always work out in practice, and several of the enchanters have already been killed. However, this practice seems to give the people courage to attack bands of robbers. The Chinese report that bands of robbers recently attacked two villages of enchanters in the west country, to take revenge on the inhabitants, killing 163 persons in one village and about 180 or 190 in the other. We are not able to verify these reports.

The Schools And The Customs Funds

BY GROVER CLARK

THERE is no need for an elaborate argument to prove that, until there is a radical change in the relations between the military and the civilian elements in the Government, there will be no money for the national schools until after the militarists have been served.

This means, for the near future at least, that the schools may get occasional doles but that the payments will be neither regular nor substantial. Yet these schools will continue to be seriously disorganised unless they are on a solid financial foundation.

Unfortunate as it may be from the point of view of the dignity of the Chinese Government, the fact remains that, at the present time, the only sources of income which are regular and adequate are under foreign control. And of these sources, that which is most free from the danger of loss of revenue because of the interference of Chinese militarists is the Customs. If some arrangement can be made, therefore, whereby the schools will get their money direct from this source, they should be in a position as secure as is possible today.

These facts have impressed themselves increasingly on the teachers in Peking during the last several months. At private discussions of what should be done, at the meetings of the Joint Council of the Teachers of the eight national higher schools, and at general meetings, the question of getting money from the Customs has been discussed at some length. And recently it was brought up again at a reception given by the teachers to the pressmen of Peking.

When the proposal to put the schools on the Customs first came up for serious consideration early last spring, I discussed the matter with those in a position to give authoritative information. They made it clear that no Customs money would be available for the schools at that time, nor, at best, until the end of the calendar year. In the first place, without the authorisation of the Diplomatic Corps, no money could be released until December 31, and, in the second place, the obligations of the Customs Administration to the loans, the Consolidated Service, etc. were such that it was not at all likely that there would be any surplus even at that time. Consequently, the Diplomatic Corps would be extremely hesitant about putting new obligations on this source of revenue.

All this was duly reported to a mass meeting of the teachers, and it was at that time that the proposal was advanced that an attempt should be made to get the money for the schools from the Peking Octroi.

But while no money from the Customs could then be secured for the schools, the possibility remained that, when the Special Conference to arrange for the surtax of two and one-half percent should meet, some provision along this line might be made. This Conference, by the Washington Conference agreement which arranged for it, is authorised to levy the surtax "for such purposes and subject to such conditions as it may decide. The Conference thus, if it chose, can arrange to have the schools paid from these surtax receipts.

But the principal purpose of that surtax, and the disposition of the funds in which the Conference will be most interested, is the payment of the foreign loans to China. It does not seem likely, therefore, that a bare request for funds for the schools will receive much consideration. The case for education will have to be presented adequately and convincingly, with the strongest possible support from all sides.

At a meeting of the Joint Council of the Teachers in April, I made a proposal along this line. I suggested that the Joint Council, acting with the Directors of the eight schools in Peking and the National Educational Association which had then just been organised, should make a careful study of the financial condition and needs of the national schools throughout China, not simply in Peking, and prepare a statement to submit to the Conference. I omitted the Ministry of Education from among those who should participate in the preparation of this statement because there should be no politics in the undertaking.

Though the suggestion met with the approval of the Joint Council, for various reasons it was not acted upon at that time. I bring it forward again now because it has become increasing clear that the only way the schools can be sure of their money regularly is to get it from the Customs, and the surest way to get it from this source is to make an effective and well-supported appeal to the Special Conference which is to meet in a few months.

This statement should include somewhat detailed information as to the actual funds received recently and potential receipts (some of the schools get money regularly from endowments or from provincial governments), operating expenses, number of students and faculties, etc. It also should contain a more or less detailed budget of the use to which the school funds would be put if they were received regularly, particularly with a view to giving assurances that the funds would not go for political purposes. The amounts required for the support of the students abroad, together with the receipts now available for this purpose, also should be given.

In asking for appropriations from the Customs, the amount named should be that nominally provided for national education in the most recent national budget. There also should be embodied the request that it be arranged that, when a new budget is prepared, the amount to be paid out of the Customs funds should be altered to correspond with the new budget provisions.

After this statement has been prepared, it should be submitted to the Government through the Ministry of Education, with the request that the Chinese delegates to the Conference bring it forward on behalf of the Chinese Government. There is little doubt that were such a request made it would be granted, as the authorities in the Government are, on the whole, in favor of providing adequately and regularly for education. The difficulty has been that their good intentions have been frustrated by the militarists who have grabbed what money there was. Even the military leaders, however, probably would not oppose putting the schools on the Customs, since they would not get any money from this source in any case.

As much support as possible from other sources should also be secured for this proposal, through an active publicity campaign in the Chinese press, and through a presentation of the case to the Chambers of Commerce, Educational Associations, the guilds, etc. There is little doubt that were such a campaign adequately carried through there would be a tremendous popular demand that the schools be given what they want, so that they could be freed from the vicissitudes of Chinese politics.

Without such a full statement and something in the nature of such a campaign, it seemed to me at the time I first made this proposal, as it still does, the Special Conference will not look with particular favor on giving to the Chinese schools any of the surtax funds, particularly as every cent so diverted will be just so much less toward the prompt repayment in full of the foreign loans. Nor can such a statement be prepared in a short time.

Last April it looked as though the Conference might meet early in the fall. Now it is clear that it will be some months yet before the delegates get together. There therefore still is time for the teachers, the Directors and the National Educational Association leaders to get together and prepare to present their case adequately and effectively when the Conference does meet. But unless definite action so to make their appeal is taken soon, it will be too late. And it is extremely doubtful if the Conference will agree to have the schools paid out of the Customs if nothing more than a virtually extemporaneous presentation of their case is made.

Correspondence

Editor: THE CHINA PRESS

Dear Sir: Having read the article "Germans in the Chinese Maritime Customs" in your valuable paper I beg to express my sincerest thanks to the writer "A. B. C.," for bringing before the public the plain facts about us German ex-employees of the Chinese Maritime Customs. He points out with unmistakable truth our deplorable condition at present. I have served 12 years in said service and have been only due to the war, like the rest of us put out in the misery which resulted through our dismissal. For sure there must be some who are human enough to understand that there should be something done for us, who are being driven to despair for not finding any other employment, as the service has rendered us unfit for most other work. Many of us are of such age as to make it hard to find a situation. Our families must live under worse conditions than many of the working classes of the Chinese and starvation stares us in the face. We are willing to work, but who will give it to us? Why should we be thrown on the street to the shame of the white race and the country we have served? May the appeal, which has been started, find an echo in other fair-minded people and something be done for the German ex-employees of the Chinese Maritime Customs, Enclosed please find my card.

Buddhism A Religion?

BY S. H. WAINRIGHT
(Japan Advertiser)

In a recent contribution to The Japan Advertiser, Dr. Genchi Kato of the Tokio Imperial University discussed the remarks of Count Otani on the nature of Buddhism which I had translated and published in the Advertiser a week earlier. Dr. Kato conducts his arguments with an admirable spirit and expresses himself with clearness and a perfect use of English. He is unable to concur with Count Otani's view that original Buddhism is not a religion. Some foreign scholars had denied to original Buddhism the essential elements of a religion and it was a matter of unusual interest to find their view upheld by a well known Buddhist, Dr. Kato argues at length that Buddhism in its original form was a religion and he points out what he takes to be features distinguishing Buddhism both from Brahmanism and from Christianity. We wish to offer some comments upon Dr. Kato's position in order to contribute, if possible, to the further understanding of the subject in question. A quotation will serve to show Dr. Kato's standpoint.

He says, for example, that "Buddha took away the Divine from Brahmanism, and then re-established man's relation to God after his own fashion, i.e., not in an objective, but in a subjective way." From this point of view, Dr. Kato distinguishes Buddhism not only from Brahmanism, but also from Christianity. "In the Buddhism of the Founder," he says, "the relation of a man to God is purely subjective (or personal). In an objective religion however, such as Judaism or in an objective absolute religion, however, such as Christianity, a man's relation to God is through and through objective that is to say, both faiths find God of the absolute outside of man—rather one-sidedly forgetful of another subjective way of conceiving a man's relation to God, i.e. conceiving God in man."

PANTHEISM

This mode of presenting the matter is not without difficulties. To ascribe to original Buddhism the doctrine that "God is in man," to speak of Buddha as the "Incarnation of God," to credit the Buddha with the work of "re-establishing man's relation to God" is a radical departure from the standpoint reflected in the early liberance of Buddhism preserved to our time. The pantheism of the Mahayana appears later in the course of Buddhist history and can be accounted for as being derived, not from early Buddhism, but from the broader tradition of the Hindu Schools.

That Buddha conceived of God as existing in man in contrast to Brahmanism can only be maintained on the ground that the identity of the individual self with the Highest Self or Brahman in the Upanishads was a later teaching and was borrowed from Buddhism. A canonical writing like the Katha Matthu enables us to tap the Buddhist tradition at about 250 years before Christ. The controversies of the Buddhist Schools reflected in that work disclose no such doctrine of immanence as Dr. Kato attributes to original Buddhism. In the contrast drawn by Dr. Kato between Buddhism and Christianity, he scarcely does justice to the doctrine of the Holy Spirit which has its roots in the New Testament and has been maintained with varying emphasis throughout the history of the Church.

BUDDHISM

Dr. Kato is undoubtedly correct in his main position, namely that the distinguishing feature of Buddhism is its subjectivity. It is precisely that aspect of Buddhism, or rather fundamental in Buddhism, that has led foreign students to deny to Buddhism the essential elements of religion. Religion is a response, objectivity is essential to its very life. A onesided subjectivity is possible in art, but not in religion. To regard the object of man's religious consciousness as though it were merely a subjective fact would remove the only true and enduring foundation of religion. The self, in early Buddhism, is supposed to create its own world as truly as does the artist. There is no dependence and no worship. It is difficult to find the elements of religion where there is no exaltation of the object. If Dr. Kato's position can be sustained, that original Buddhism recognised the existence of "God in us," objectivity must be ascribed to the original teaching of Sakya Muni. But, as we have said already, the immanence of God in the soul of man or within man is something that appears later.

It would seem that one must hold that religion above everything else, above every other human interest, is personal. If Sakya Muni "re-established man's relation to God," it must be said that personal relationships form the content of his message. But here again, we seem to be doing violence to history and to be substituting the teachings of later for earlier periods. And it is our understanding that the Buddhist writer whose words we translated denied to Buddhism the elements of a religion simply because the essential Buddhism transcended the realm of personality.

Dr. Kato asks, "If Buddhism is not a religion, then what is it?" Of course, Buddhism the elements of a religion. The discussion, however, relates to essential or original Buddhism. It is not an easy matter to say just what the nature of original Buddhism was judging from the literature we now have on the subject, original Buddhism apparently was a moral therapeutic, based on a psychology, for the removal of pain.

COTTON

In their weekly report on the Shanghai cotton market, Messrs. A. B. Rosenfeld and Son write as follows:

China Cotton:—Since writing our last report, our market experienced a sharp advance due to the shorts covering on the bear side on account of further rains and a heavy blow. At the close, the Bears, taking advantage of the continued favorable weather, succeeded in hammering prices back to their former low level, but the only effect so far has been the stampede of the more timid Longs. Business during the week was practically at a standstill and what little business was transacted was done with repeated attempts to bring about speculative scares. The actual damage from these rains and typhoon will probably prove of much consequence, as these weeks are the most important for the crop.

Under the circumstances, therefore, we do not think that the recent advance has been excessive, and while any calculation involving the future course of prices is dependent on developments regarding the crop, we believe with the outlook as it presents itself at present, the chances for successful operations still lie on the Bull side. So that if any temporary weakness should develop in the speculative markets, we could only advise our friends to take advantage of such moments to buy.

Yarn:—During the past week there has been no change in the fundamental conditions of the market. Fluctuations were within narrow limits and with a steady tendency at the close of the week. Some 3-4,000 bales of local spinnings have been booked for export to Szechuen, Kiangse, Canton, Weihaiwei, Swatow, Tientsin and Hankow.

SPUNT'S REPORT

Messrs. J. Spunt and Company state as follows in their weekly report on their report on the cotton market.

China Cotton:—Whatever little business that transpired during the past week may be characterised as having been done in a hand-to-mouth fashion, so that prices with hardly any fluctuations remained steady at the close.

The rainy weather now being experienced is in no way favorable to the new season crop in its present fruiting stage and there is every reason to expect a fair amount of deterioration which will be more accentuated as the inclemency of the weather continues. What is required at this time to ensure the hitherto expected yield, is dry and sunny weather to hasten the opening of the bolls and allow unhindered picking operations, otherwise considerable damage in so far as to seriously affect the ultimate outturn of the new season crop may be looked forward to. The conditions being such as outlined above the natural deductions would indicate taking advantage of current prices before any untoward sharp upward fluctuations become dominant in the market. Tone of the market. Steady.

PONGEE SILK

The China Merchants Pongee Association have received the following report from their Chefoo head office on the Pongee silk market:

Very little activity has been witnessed in our market during the week. Inquiry from Europe and America for forward shipment seems to be good but only at lower rates.

Fortunately the reports that are being received from Antung regarding the Autumn cocoon crop are very satisfactory. It is expected that owing to increase of about 30 percent in the sericultural grounds in Manchuria this year and the, so far, favorable climatic conditions, this year crop will be larger in quantity also of a superior quality than that of last year. With a good crop in Manchuria there is a likelihood of prices receding to "Normal" again in the next few months.

Tussah Silk:—A decline of 11 Taels per bale was reported this week.

Antung Tussah 8 cocoons was quoted at Antung Taels 730, on the 5th instant (Ex Filature Antung).

HAIRNET

Messrs. Yannoulatos Bros. (China) have received the following report from their Chefoo head office on the hairnet market.

The market has been quiet during the week but due to the scarcity of stocks (of good quality nets) as reported last week—prices have somewhat stiffened.

Supplies are still small while a moderate but regular demand continues.

JUTE FABRICS

Mr. J. A. Fredericks writes as follows in his report on the jute fabrics.

Though there is little business to report during the past two weeks prices have been steady and no cargo is obtainable at prices lower than those following. Calcutta prices are firm with upward tendency.

HANKOW MARKET

Bar silver has advanced steadily from 35⅛d. ready and forward to 35⅝d. ready and forward. New York-London Cross rate rose from 446¼ to 447½ but dropped back today to 447⅛. The official T.T. rate rose from 3s. 6½d. to 3s. 6¾d. on 2nd instant at which it has remained with sellers up to 3s. 7⅛d. 4 m-s. credits could be placed as low as 3s. 7⅝d. early in the week but closed firm with no buyers under 3s. 8⅛d. Very little business was done during the week. Chinese market rates Shanghai Tls. 97.15. Local currency $70.35. Native interest 9 percent.

Exports.—No business of any consequence passing. Tael prices continue to rule firm.

Imports.—Business is at a standstill.

HONGKONG SHARES

Messrs. Moxon and Taylor of Hongkong write as follows in their report on share market dated Hongkong, September 8:

Our market has been quite active during the past week, especially as regards cash transactions. Forward business still continues on a very restricted scale.

Rubber continues featureless.

The following are the principal alterations since last week.

Hongkong Banks:—Have come to business at $880 and there are further buyers at this price for small lots.

Unions:—Are wanted at $201½.

Hongkong Lands:—Have buyers at $222 without attracting sellers.

Humphreys:—Have been the medium of a fair business at $14½.

Cantons:—Are wanted at $455.

Hongkong Fires:—Have risen to a buying rate of $405 without attracting sellers.

China Sugars:—Are asked for at $155.

China Providents:—Took rather a jump during the week and were done as high as $33 for cash and at the close are rather easier with buyers at $29, sellers at $30, after sales at $31½.

Lane, Crawfords:—After coming to business at $24 eased off to $18½, but close firm with buyers at $19¼.

London quotations of the 7th instant:—Hongkong Banks £116 buyers. Indos Deferred £29 10/-, Shells £4.13.9. Both middle prices.

Mexican Eagle Oil:—The latest London Quotations give buyers at £3.11.3, which rise is no doubt due to the following telegram just received from London. "Mexican Eagles have struck a new well, giving 10,000 barrels daily high quality oil in the Conception district."

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

Don't Poison Baby.

FORTY YEARS AGO almost every mother thought her child must have paregoric or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, and a few drops too many will produce the sleep from which there is no waking. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labeling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which in poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrups," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given to your children without you or your physician knowing of what it is composed. Castoria does not contain narcotics.

Physicians Recommend Castoria.

"I have frequently prescribed Castoria for common ailments of children with good results."
W. A. CRANDALL, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.

F. DAVIS, M. D., Chicago, Ill.

"As the father of thirteen children I certainly know something about your great medicine and, aside from my own family experience, I have, in my years of practice found Castoria a popular and efficient remedy in almost every home."
WM. J. MCCRANN, M. D., Omaha, Neb.

"I object to what are called patent medicines, where the maker alone knows what stuff is put in them, but I know the formula of your Castoria and advise its use in proper cases. I judge it to be a very useful, as well as harmless family medicine."
N. B. SIZER, M. D., Brooklyn, N. Y.
